Jonathan Zimmerman

Title: Professor of Education and History

Affiliation: Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, The Steinhardt School of Culture, Education and Human Development, New York University; Department of History, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences (a part-time appointment)

Recent Awards: Distinguished Teaching Award, New York University, 2008

Recent Publications: Small Wonder: The Little Red Schoolhouse in History and Memory (Yale University Press, June 2009); Innocents Abroad: American Teachers in the American Century (Harvard University Press, 2006)

Country of Residence: United States

Jonathan Zimmerman is Professor of Education and History at the Steinhardt School of Culture, Education, and Human Development, New York University. He also holds an appointment in the Department of History in NYU's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. A former Peace Corps volunteer and high school teacher, Zimmerman is the author of Small Wonder: The Little Red Schoolhouse in History and Memory (Yale, 2009); Innocents Abroad: American Teachers in the American Century (Harvard, 2006); Whose America: Culture Wars in the Public Schools (Harvard, 2002); and Distilling Democracy: Alcohol Education in America's Public Schools, 1880-1925 (Kansas, 1999). He is also a frequent op-ed contributor to the New York Times, the Washington Post, the New Republic, and other popular newspapers and magazines. Zimmerman won New York University's Distinguished Teaching Award in 2008.